BUZZTALK

"Music has compelling outcomes even in the very late stages of the disease (Alzheimer). Music will shift mood, manage stress-induced agitation stimulate positive interactions, facilitate cognitive function, an coordinate motor movements."

- Alzheimer's Foundation of America
 (AFA)

"Music memories are often preserved in Alzheimer's disease because key brain areas linked to musical memory are relatively undamaged by the disease"

- Dr. Jonathan Graff-Radford
 Mayo Clinic

Music therapists who work with Alzheimer's patients describe seeing people "wake up" when the sounds of loved and familiar music fills their heads. Often, after months or even years of not speaking at all, they begin to talk again, become more social and seem more engaged by their surroundings.
